

Firstly, no media outlet should be able to outright slander a candidate for office. The views for/against any candidate are already expressed quite vividly and vehemently by individuals in every form of media. To do this would be no different than a group shutting down regular shows to show Fahrenheit 9/11 which I feel would be equally wrong. It's not about which candidate the company takes sides with, it's about pushing a view onto the public and depriving them of the material they would choose to see on their own.

This type of corporate slander and obvious favoritism is unfair and simply wrong. You should stop this from occurring regardless of the titles any group chooses to play.

If it were HBO running a "political" week on ONE of their self-owned channels that would be one thing but a conglomerate bypassing many of their stations without giving the broadcasting stations themselves the right to choose if the changes are acceptable is unjust.

Please, send Sinclair Broadcasting and all similar companies a clear and decisive message that this cannot be tolerated.

Thank you...
